FALL-21

Strong, yet playful silhouettes, neutral colors with pop of red - Tamuna Ingorokva Fall 2021 collection pays tribute to the life we all miss and gives us an opportunity to escape the new normal. The normal we all hope will come to an end.

While working on the collection, the designer was inspired by street art, which she would observe around the city. In these strange times, every corner of the streets gained new significance. It became clear that finding beauty in the surroundings was crucial to feel inspired and to create something new.

Beige, red, black and white are the colors that prevail throughout the latest collection. Defined cuts with pop of rhinestones and delicate lace create the contrast between the pieces of the collection in the most organic and natural way.

Starting off with day-to-day looks, the collection gradually offers us evening looks and pays tribute to the night life, which seems to be so unattainable right now. As described by the designer, Fall 2021 collection feels like collective nostalgia. It is a homage to each and every moment in the past that makes it possible for us to stay sane in the current situation.
